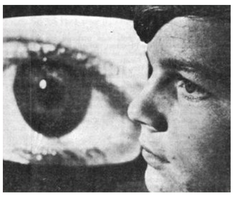
What Is MK ULTRA?



MK ULTRA and CIA Mind Control

Project MK ULTRA is part of a CIA mind control program that was started in 1953. The code name was given to a program designed to experiment on human subjects mostly unwittingly . It was undertaken by the United States of America's Central Intelligence Agency. The experiments were meant to be used to identify and develop drugs and procedures to be used during interrogations to gather information. It was used to force confessions on individuals through mind control. It was organized by the CIA's Office of Scientific Intelligence and coordinated by the United States Army's Biological Warfare Laboratories. The program was mostly illegal testing on citizens of the United States and Canada. MK ULTRA used various techniques to manipulate the test subjects including using psychoactive drugs including LSD and other chemicals, electroshock, hypnosis, sensory deprivation, isolation, verbal and sexual abuse, and other methods of torture.

Project MK ULTRA was conduced at American universities, hospitals, prison, and by pharmaceutical companies. The CIA used front organizations to conduced these experiments. However, some top officials knew of the CIA's involvement. In 1973, the CIA Director Richard Helm ordered that all Project MK ULTRA files be destroyed in 1973. A small number of files on MK ULTRA survived Richard Helm's destruction order.The details of the illegal program didn't become public knowledge until 1975 after a congressional investigation into widespread illegal activities within the United State and around the world.

World War II, Joseph Mengele and Mind Control

During World War II mind control research was pioneered by the Nazi doctor known as the Angel of Death, Joseph Mengele. He was well known for his experiments involving torture. He used methods to see what the maximum amount of pain a human could withstand and the minimal amount of love needed. The goals was to create an obedient slave. In the aftermath of WWII, hundreds of top Nazi scientists were imported to the United States as part of Operation Paperclip. They were given new identities and integrated into the CIA which was created in 1947. The CIA was a merger of Nazi scientists and already existing American Intelligence. Among the Nazi scientists imported were many scientist who had been conducting mind control experiments during the war in Germany. MK ULTRA was a continuation of that work.

The Cold War and Project MK-Ultra

At the height of the Cold War in the 1950s through the 1960s the United States government feared that Soviet, Chinese and North Korean agents were using mind control to brainwash U.S. prisoners of war in Korea. In response to the Cold War the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency Allan approved Project MK-Ultra in 1953. It was aimed at aimed developing interrogation techniques that could be used against Soviet enemies. It's goal was to control human behavior with drugs and other psychological manipulators. Some test subject were aware and others not. There were over 150 human experiments conducted.
